

a To what extent has urban planning and culture in IVC provided inputs to present day urbanization.
Discuss. (200 words)

From the evolution of different stone ages towards end of mesolithic age and beginning of neolithic age people shifted towards settlements. This tendency later reflected ~~was~~ an upgraded version of sedentary life in Indus valley civilization which is marked as great revolution. Hence IVC is famous for its unique and advanced urban culture.

Inputs to present day urbanization

(1)

Citadel → In IVC towns ~~are~~ divided as lower towns (residence for common people) seg and citadels (residence of ruining class).
→ Present day we can find many regional divisions, rural and urban area divisions and city centers etc. which reflect the same idea.

 Ex: New Delhi - Region around India Gate & Parliament

②

Great Bath

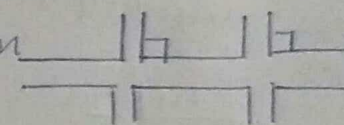

Very good what u have said the det means u know how to ans. structure here

They are found in regions of Mohenjodaro that are used to take ritual baths. They are large tank like structures

Such large water tanks can be used in water harvesting areas.

③

Grid pattern

Roads and streets were arranged in grid patterns right angle to each other. Houses were arranged in  them.

Recently planned cities ~~in~~ follow grid pattern. Grandhinagar, Bhubaneswar and Chandigarh are some cities to in India having such patterns.

④

Great Granaries

These areas found at Mohenjodaro are used for storing surplus grains.

Present day Food Co operation of India godowns are similar to great granaries.

⑤

Crafts of seals

Evidences of crafts, seals and ornaments were obtained from Harappan site.

Today we use it as ceramics, currency and fashion jewellery.
